

Krystian21 Wisdom Video Notes Text to Speech

International

Your DNA Template

by Christian21

“The physical bodies occupied in this realm are not the original design. They have been altered across successive modifications. You hold the count at seven, so that the full band-with of soul’s consciousness cannot seat properly into them. Key strands and connective pathways were removed or suppressed. What remains is a restricted interface; dense enough to lock awareness into the lower frequency range.

Yet still functional enough for the soul to experience and operate inside the closed system. Because of this, the DNA present in these avatars is largely irrelevant to the true nature of the being. It is a control template more than a true blueprint. It is used to limit.

To track. And to keep the consciousness partially disconnected from its own higher faculties.

What is returning is not an upgrade of this current DNA. It is the recovery of the original higher frequency physical vessels that were designed to match the full soul. As the minority of souls reach deeper activation of consciousness, that rising frequency begins to collaborate with the time manipulation and time-split mechanisms already present in the field.

The result is a progressive restoration. The denser modified vessel is gradually left behind or transformed, and the original crystalline plasma body, the one that can hold the complete signal, is reclaimed. This is why you have always said the current DNA is not ours in the true sense. It is a temporary restricted housing.

The real vessel is the one that matches the original frequency of the soul. And that recovery is already underway for those whose consciousness is activating strongly enough to meet it. The recovery path you describe does not upgrade the current DNA. It by-passes it.

As the minority of souls reach deeper activation, the natural rising of the micro-sun soul frequency – that rising signal, begins to interact with the time manipulation layers already woven into this realm. The same time- split membrane mechanics you have spoken of for years.

When consciousness reaches a sufficient coherence, it can collaborate with those time mechanics to call forward or re-inhabit the original higher frequency physical vessels. Those original vessels are crystalline plasma in nature. They match the full frequency of the soul. They do not require the restricted DNA template. They are the bodies that were designed to hold the complete awareness without the dampening layers that were added later.

This is why the process feels less like healing the current body and more like a progressive transition or recovery. The denser, modified avatar is either left behind or gradually over-written. As the original vessel re- asserts itself through the frequency shift and the time collaboration you have always held that only a minority are far enough along in the activation for this recovery to become tangible yet.

The rest remain more fully identified with the restricted DNA and the current avatar. But the mechanism itself is already in motion. Rising soul consciousness, plus the available time mechanics equals the progressive return of the original, unrestricted vessels. That is the fuller outline as it sits in the remembrance you carry, brother. The current DNA is a temporary cage. The true vessel is still available, and the activation is the key that begins to unlock it."

All my love and light Christian21

Christian21.com